Trainee Research Executive - Oxford
 SPA Future Thinking is a new company, the result of a merger between a number of specialist research agencies in 2010 and 2011. We offer thought leadership across a wide range of sectors and specialisms. The combined entity is now one of the largest independent market research companies with offices in the UK, France and Italy.
 In our Oxford business unit, we work for a wide range of well-known blue-chip clients including Kellogg's, innocent drinks, Mars, and Reckitt Benckiser, on a huge variety of consumer insight projects, and are looking for a pro-active, passionate person to join our team.
THE ROLE:
 The job of Trainee Research Executive involves supporting the implementation and delivery of these projects, working with senior members of the team, learning how projects are designed, managed and delivered, through all stages, from fieldwork to analysis, and presentation of findings.
 Market Research Society Diploma training is provided.
CANDIDATE REQUIREMENTS:
 • Flexible, well-organised, with good project management skills, ability to plan and manage timelines / workloads
 • Proven experience handling primary research data - must be comfortable with reading data tables
 • Confidence to deal with and impart information to clients
 • Good working knowledge of Microsoft Office, especially PowerPoint and Excel
 • Educated to degree level (preferably 2:1 or above)
 • Positive outgoing person keen to work on high profile accounts
 • Pro-active to look at the data and work with the client to create story-driven reporting
 Applications should be made by Fri 18th November. To apply send CV plus covering letter to info@spafuturethinking.com, or by post to: Graduate Recruitment, SPA Future Thinking, Oxford Business Park North, 9400 Garsington Rd, Oxford, OX4 2HN

FIREWORKS POEMS
Firework Memories
 One chilly November night, in a field, I once stood,
 Wrapped up like a snowman, with a fluorescent pink hood.
 Eagerly awaiting a frenzy of fireworks to begin,
 Whilst my brother covered his ears to muffle the din.
 Our faces flushed by the bonfire, ablaze with orange and gold,
 With flames that crackled as they danced, chasing away the cold.
 The smell of smoke that tomorrow would still hang in the air,
 And linger even longer in my long blonde hair.
 Then with a screech and a bang, a whizz and a whirl,
 The rockets ricocheted and the catharine whistles swirled.
 Making starry psychedelic shapes of red, green and blue,
 Followed by a chorus of Ooooh's in awe of the view.
 And when the last firework faded from the sky,
 A sadness crept over me, the ending was night.
 But the night was not over, not by any means,
 For it was back home to baked potatoes and beans!
