FEATURE - UNIVERSITY SPORT
Danceport Varsity Match 2008
 The 35th annual Oxford vs Cambridge Varsity Match. Main Gym, Iffley Road Sports Centre, Sat 10th May 2008, doors 9.30am.

Where else can you see an Oxford Blue in sequins and high heels? The 35th annual Oxford vs Cambridge Varsity Danceport Match is on this Saturday and promises to be particularly intense. For this year, Oxford conquered Cambridge in the Southern University Championships but lost to them at the British University National Competition. So the Varsity match is the decider: best of three. There's the Varsity trophy to fight for, currently in Cantabian hands. Not to mention honour, glory, extremely impressive music etc etc.

As with the majority of the Blues sports, for the Varsity match there is an A team and a B team. The A team compete for the Varsity trophy and the Varsity title, rather than in the Boat Race. The B team match, created 13 years ago in response to the growing popularity of the sport, is for the Championship trophy.

Have you ever wondered how Astaire and Rogers managed to avoid looking as dishevelled as the rest of us after a bit of hopping about? Amanda Unsworth of the OUDC reveals the secret tailoring that goes into dancing suits and dresses.

'Costumes are made so that they facilitate and highlight body movement. Very light fabrics and often fringing are used as to create 'extra' movement. Rhinestones, sequins and applique are then added to help you stand out and catch the attention of the spectators and judges!

'Ballroom skirts especially tend to be 2-panel skirts so that movement isn't restricted. For men, trousers are made long so that they don't ride up and show socks. Special shoulder pads are used so that they don't 'bunch up', keeping the line correct and coordination as it involves lots of rotation. It is danced in 6/8 timing (1.2, 1.2, 3, 1.2) to music such as the Blue Danube.' Seats are only £2, and standing room in the galleries is completely free! Go along and watch an inspirational movie!

'This year the team was lucky enough to receive sponsorship from ballroom dress manufacturer Acapulco Parana. Danceport also requires specialist shoes, different for both Ballroom and Latin dancing. OUDC is fortunate to be sponsored by Dancia International, a Ballroom and Latin dance shoe supplier in Woodstock.'

The event on Saturday should be a spectacular opportunity to see some of Oxford's - and Cambridge's - finest and best athletes performing with much more grace and panache than one can achieve in a boat or on a nasty muddy field. You should watch out particularly for any Viennese Waltzer - the IVA mentions that this dance 'is rarely seen outside of a competition environment, and indeed is seen by many competitors as a dance of endurance.' Amanda elaborates: 'The Viennese waltz has the fastest steps of all the other dances, and is one of the fastest to rotate. It is danced in 6/8 timing (1.2, 1.2, 3, 1.2) to music such as the Blue Danube.' Seats are only £2, and standing room in the galleries is completely free! Go along and watch an inspirational movie!

Our thanks to Amanda Unsworth of OUDC for all her time and information!
