Russian Fairytale

A vision realised on the Cowley Road 88 Cowley Road, Oxford OX4 1JB, tel/fax: 01865 250819

A few months ago three women put into action something they had been dreaming of for a long time: to create a small corner of Russia in Oxford. When we think of home, our thoughts often turn to food, and this certainly forms the basis of 'Russian Fairytale's' business. Nevertheless, they have also managed by what seems like magic but is probably 99% hard work, to provide a small window onto Russian culture through crafts, tapes, CD's, books and videos.
For those in search of a Russian gastronomic experience, or the chance to experiment with Russian cuisine, there is a wealth of opportunity, with an emphasis on organic ingredients as well as cookbooks in English and Russian. The delicatessen counter serves traditional delicacies: salads with salted herring and vegetables, beetroot and walnuts, and other evocative mixtures; soups including borsch and solyanka (a less well-known but delicious thick soup with frankfurters and gherkins); different kinds of sausage, stuffed small pies) and caviar, as well as declares that it meets the demands of kings) there are some rare pre-Perestroika varieties, and vodkas flavoured with cranberries and lemon. 'Russian Fairytale' has attracted the attention of customers from other eastern European countries, and has also begun to stock food from Poland, Bulgaria, Romania and Slovenia.

It would be an unusual and satisfying place in which to do Christmas shopping. Hampers can be made for you, but there are also presents of chocolates at around £3-£5 per box, as well as fairytale scenes of smaller dolls inside, including traditional dolls, and a variety of dolls in different scenes and old a bottle of vodka or (including the alcohol), permanent and attractive. While stocks last there are Russian landscapes, and - my favourite - a calendar with seasonal scenes.
If you have a desire to learn short stories as well as videos of Russian films, Chekov, Tolstoy, Gorky shelves it is also possible to buy kefir (Russian whole milk (which I am assured is very healthy), marinated gherkins, dried fish, honey cakes, a variety of Vodkas and rising. As well as a very good Lithuanian (the label have 25%, mas is in mid- is in and fore
