MODERN ART OXFORD
 This month, work starts in earnest on a substantial redesign of the Gallery's entrance and public areas which will see the existing yard transformed into a new art and social space for Oxford city centre. From April, the Gallery will also be extending its opening hours until 10pm on Thursday, Friday and Saturday with a varied programme of events. The Café/Bar will re-open with a focus on great coffee, good wine and will be integral to the success of the evening programme.
 We are looking for two enthusiastic members to join our team who will help us to create a welcoming, friendly environment in our new space:
Duty Manager (evenings, part-time, £7.84ph)
 To manage the evening events programme, ensuring the health, safety and welfare of staff and customers at all times. Ideally you should have experience of managing events with a small team, preferably within an arts/entertainment environment.
Café Bar Assistant Manager (evenings, part-time, £6.71ph)
 To manage the Café/Bar evening operation and assist the Duty Manager with evening events. You must have an enthusiasm for excellent customer service and experience of café/bar work.
 Both postholders will be required to work Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings (approx 18 hours per week). Training days will start at the end of March 2010. Interviews for Assistant Café/Bar Manager will be held on Tuesday 2nd March / Interviews for Duty Manager will be held on Thursday 10th & Friday 11th March. Closing date for applications: Friday 26th February.
 Full details of these positions and how to apply are available from our website www.modernartoxford.org.uk or by calling Sheridan Edward on 01865 813803.
 Modern Art Oxford is committed to equal opportunities in recruitment and employment. We welcome applications from ethnic minorities, who are currently under-represented in our organisation.
 Modern Art Oxford is supported by Arts Council England, South East and Oxford City Council.

CINEMA REVIEWS

Avatar [12A]
 On all over the place in 2- and 3-D. Here's what people have been saying...
 Possibly the most beautiful film I have ever seen - like spending time in your most ravishing imaginary world that you can only recall in tantalizing fragments from your childhood, but here you get over three whole hours to explore it. Watching it is so intense, it is almost like having an out of body experience, especially if you cough up the extra dosh to see the 3D version.
 It doesn't matter that the plot is clearly derivative (there was a very charming children's animation about fifteen years ago called something like Enchanted Forest with an almost identical story) or that the Na'vi are essentially East Coast Native Americans only eight feet tall and blue, or that the stunning landscapes first appeared on Roger Dean album covers in the 70s. It isn't in the least bit jarring to find the inexplicable (and I think oddly endearing) Hollywood obsession with portraying one's own government and military as corrupt, greedy, treacherous bastards in the midst of this unearthly paradise.
 Because this film is quite simply awesome. Just surrender yourself to it utterly. I am sorry I left it so late to see it, because now I have little time left in which to see it again (and again) before it disappears, and this is a must-see for a big, big screen, preferably a 3D one. The FX are astounding - basically the entire film is FX - but the story is one of mythic simplicity and beauty, and the central performance by the chap who plays Jake Sully is pretty damn good. If you haven't seen it yet, rush out and buy tickets now.
Andrea Hopkins

PERFORMERS WANTED

No kid will easily forget the stand-out surely-not moment when the Na'vi's world meets the missiles from hell. The verdict?
Princess Mononoke for the multiplex generation. Glenn Watson

Occasionally seeing things floating around the audience's heads with surround sound can almost make you feel like you're really there.
Dancingman

Don't expect depth in anything but the visuals.
Val B

Some Hollywood films just stream, 'We don't agree with US foreign policy! We're cool and right on!' Frankly, it's a bit boring. And the dialogue is sometimes unintentionally laugh out loud funny. It's like it's been written on the day of shooting.
Russell George

The most acst movie in the world!
Anon

Cinema must have its brave last stand where bows and arrows defeat nuclear gunships. It must hammer home its anti-war message by making the good guys win. It's not clever, but it sure is pretty!
