WILL EXCHANGE SOUTHERN California beach home for central Oxford house, flat, two to four weeks summer 2005. padraic@fea.net

How refreshing to have at long last discovered a hairdressers in Oxford that not only offers a friendly and personal service, but one that actually takes the time to listen to what you want Until I discovered Matthew Clulee Hair Spas, a visit to the hairdressers was about as enjoyable as a trip to the dentist for root canal treatment. Normally a confident and outgoing person, I would find myself reduced to vague nods and the inability to communicate by intimidating hairdressers who seemed intent on giving me a style I was never going to manage to replicate on my own Having heard some resounding compliments and very positive comments about the team at Matthew Clulee, I ventured there for the first time over a year ago. After numerous visits I have to admit that I've never once been disappointed by the cuts, colouring or service I've received. I even look forward to my visits to the hairdressers now as the whole experience is relaxing, enjoyable and I know I'm going to come out feeling and looking like a million dollars!

With a salon in Headington and one in Ship Street in the city centre (just up the road opposite Austin Reed and next to Russell & Bromley), Matthew Chlee is clearly getting things right.

Both premises are ultra cool and combine the chic atmosphere with the polite and friendly service and you're guaranteed to come away feeling you've got value for your money. The entire team at Matthew Clulee seem to take a great deal of pride in their personal service. Whether you're with a junior stylist or Matthew hinself, you really enjoy a non-rushed, personal treatment that leaves you confident in their ability and happy with the result. I'm also extremely excited that Matthew's just opened a fabulous new beauty suite in the city centre salon and having tried and tested a number of treatments (which include manicures, pedicures waxing, tanning and facials) I'm pleased to say the fantastic service extends to this new venture
