Companion Carevets
Veterinary Surgery Receptionist
 Oxford. £Salary depending on experience
 We are looking for a professional individual to join us as a receptionist in our friendly, fully equipped small animal practice inside Pets at Home on Botley Road Retail Park. This will be a full time role from mid August 2011 and will include some weekend work. There may be the possibility of some part time work beforehand.
 This is a unique opportunity to join our reception team within a veterinary and retail environment. If you are organised, able to prioritise, enjoy meeting new people and talking to members of the public and like animals then this is the role for you! Previous receptionist or retail experience would be helpful but is not essential.
 In addition to the full time vacancy, we sometimes need a temporary receptionist for holiday cover, and would welcome applications for this position also.

LMH Lady Margaret Hall
Junior Dean
 Applications from graduate students are invited for the post of Junior Dean.
 We employ two Junior Deans, usually starting in alternative years. We propose to appoint a Junior Dean, to commence on 5th September 2011 for a period of one year, with the possibility of renewal for a second year.
 There are two Junior Deans, who assist the Dean and other officers of the College in ensuring smooth running of the College with particular regard to discipline and good behaviour of students living in College. Junior Deans reside in College, are on call during weeks 0 to 9 of term and respond to incidents and complaints when necessary. Two Junior Deans are employed by the College, one each on call in alternate weeks. They liaise with the Lodge and with the Dean in identifying offenders and conducting disciplinary procedures. This usually involves attending interviews conducted by the Dean. They act to help resolve minor disputes, advising students on considerate behaviour if minor disputes occur.
 Junior Deans are required to be resident in College and will receive accommodation, free of charge, together with some free meals and an expenses allowance, currently £200 per full academic term. Junior Deans usually pursue full-time postgraduate research, at Oxford University for the entirety of their appointment. Further particulars of the post can be found at <http://www.lmh.ox.ac.uk>
 To apply, refer first to the further particulars for full details. Include a full curriculum vitae explaining how the eligibility and selection criteria would be fulfilled, a covering letter outlining the skills and qualities you could bring to the post and send two references. One should be from your graduate studies academic supervisor. Applications should be sent to the Personnel Officer, Lady Margaret Hall, Oxford OX2 6QA or emailed to: marie.ruffe@lmh.ox.ac.uk
 Applications must be received by noon on 1st July 2011. Interviews are expected to take place in the week beginning 11th July.
 Lady Margaret Hall is an equal opportunities employer.

 Applications from graduate students are invited for the post of Junior Dean.
 We employ two Junior Deans, usually starting in alternative years. We propose to appoint a Junior Dean, to commence on 5th September 2011 for a period of one year, with the possibility of renewal for a second year.
 There are two Junior Deans, who assist the Dean and other officers of the College in ensuring smooth running of the College with particular regard to discipline and good behaviour of students living in College. Junior Deans reside in College, are on call during weeks 0 to 9 of term and respond to incidents and complaints when necessary. Two Junior Deans are employed by the College, one each on call in alternate weeks. They liaise with the Lodge and with the Dean in identifying offenders and conducting disciplinary procedures. This usually involves attending interviews conducted by the Dean. They act to help resolve minor disputes, advising students on considerate behaviour if minor disputes occur.
 Junior Deans are required to be resident
