JOBS OFFERED

IT Systems Administrator / IT Manager — Oxford NANOPORE Technologies

Oxford Nanopore Technologies Ltd is developing a 'third-generation' DNA sequencing technology that is expected to deliver a dramatic improvement in the speed and cost of genetic analysis. The Company is seeking a highly motivated individual in the field of Information Technology to lead the administration, expansion and maintenance of our IT infrastructure.

The company anticipates rapid growth in its IT function to fulfil its operational and technological goals. For our business operations we will need to support an accelerated headcount and level of business activity through growing core IT systems, the provision of high level of service, and by exceeding various compliance criteria. For our technological applications we are building a system that will successfully and efficiently manage many terabytes of DNA sequencing and other experimental data. We are also authoring software systems to manage that data, and of course software for our product.

The successful candidate will maintain direct, hands-on involvement with the IT systems as well as strategic, planning, budgetary and other management responsibilities. This role is broad, technically challenging and has significant potential managerial responsibilities. It will provide an ideal springboard for a talented Systems Administrator to grow into a broad IT Manager, or for an existing IT Manager to take full responsibility for the entire IT provision of a rapidly growing technology company.

The successful candidate will have experience of the administration and configuration of core corporate servers, high performance scientific computing and disk systems, security systems, network infrastructure and backups. Critically, this role also has responsibility for maintenance of service levels, implementation of any IT related legal compliance issues and policies, and disaster recovery. The role will also include future systems specification, sourcing and budgetary monitoring.

Experience: we are looking for someone motivated by challenges and with a high level of aptitude for IT systems architecture design and organization. Demonstrable aptitude is more important than experience. However, candidates should have a background in IT administration with a track record for delivery and teamwork, preferably within small dynamic companies. Technical skills may include, but not be limited to: LINUX and Windows system administration, AD/Exchange, network design, clustered storage, backup systems, HPC, IT security and firewalls and desktop support. Desirable skills also include: any knowledge programming, scripting for systems administration, cluster installation and configuration. Candidates will be favoured who have worked in high-throughput data generation environments and/or have experience of supporting laboratory science.
