JOBS

KING'S SCHOOL OXFORD
We're looking for two ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANTS to join the administration team of this busy international language school and sixth-form college. One full-time, one part-time.
The PART-TIME POST involves helping to administer the important IELTS examinations (International English Language Testing Service) for which King's School is the Oxford centre.
The FULL-TIME POST also involves IELTS administration and combines this with assisting the Registrar in maintaining student data, processing bookings, invoicing and so on.
This could be the job for you if you have office experience and would enjoy administrative work in a lively youthful environment.
You must be able to pay meticulous attention to detail and learn the purpose-written software we use. Both posts begin in September (earlier if possible) but please don't apply if you just want to fill in for a few months. We want you to be in the job long enough to make a real difference.
Details are available on the school website www.kingsoxford.co.uk
Application letter with CV by 17th August to the Principal, King's School Oxford, St. Joseph's Hall, Temple Road, Oxford, OX4 2JU, or by email to pat@kingsoxford.co.uk

REVIEW: THEATRE
Playhouse until Saturday 28th
THUNDERBIRDS F.A.B.
You know you're headed for theatre's Final Frontier and not just your seat when you pass a serene middle-aged couple in mid-aisle, resplendent in racy blue Thunderbirds caps at rakish angles, quietly and separately engrossed in The Independent. This is retro-nostalgia in all its glory and last night it had struck diaphanous fans out of the woodwork like hapless thumb tacks to a horse magnet. For those of you who have been living on another planet for the last four decades the show is based on the original 1960s Thunderbirds 'Supermarionation' (that's funky-puppets-with-strings) TV series by Gerry Anderson, in which Good reassuringly defeated Bad, week after week.
This production's simple but stunningly effective set and catchy 60s style music immediately kickstart the kitsch memories. By the time the show starts - with one of the instantly familiar characters dramatically backlit and uncannily identical to the original marionette - the audience is well on its way. We're launched full tilt into an appropriately simple plot: the President of America is balanced precariously on a sabotaged bridge, in a clear and present danger of being annihilated by the evil Mr. X. Can the Thunderbirds - with the help of the dashman and show-stealing Captain Scarlet - save him in time?
Who cares? For as the refreshing mix of kids and adults denotes, the attraction of the show is that it both pays homage to and caricatures the endear-

Playhouse until Saturday 28th
THUNDERBIRDS F.A.B.
You know you're headed for theatre's Final Frontier and not just your seat when you pass a serene middle-aged couple in mid-aisle, resplendent in racy blue Thunderbirds caps at rakish angles, quietly and separately engrossed in The Independent. This is retro-nostalgia in all its glory and last night it had struck diaphanous fans out of the woodwork like hapless thumb tacks to a horse magnet. For those of you who have been living on another planet for the last four decades the show is based on the original 1960s Thunderbirds 'Supermarionation' (that's funky-puppets-with-strings) TV series by Gerry Anderson, in which Good reassuringly defeated Bad, week after week.
This production's simple but stunningly effective set and catchy 60s style music immediately kickstart the kitsch memories. By the time the show starts - with one of the instantly familiar characters dramatically backlit and uncannily identical to the original marionette - the audience is well on its way. We're launched full tilt into an appropriately simple plot: the President of America is balanced precariously on a sabotaged bridge, in a clear and present danger of being annihilated by the evil Mr. X. Can the Thunderbirds - with the help of the dashman and show-stealing Captain Scarlet - save him in time?
Who cares? For as the refreshing mix of kids and adults denotes, the attraction of the show is that it both pays homage to and caricatures the endear-
