PRO-TEST

BUILD THE OXFORD ANIMAL LAB!

Demonstration Sat June 3

- Medical research is essential to develop new treatments for diseases including Cancer, Parkinson's, Alzheimer's, Heart Disease, HIV-AIDS and many others.
- Finding safe and effective drugs requires testing on animals.
- Oxford University is building a state-of-the-art animal research laboratory on South Parks Road.
- Animal Rights campaigners prevented the construction of a similar facility in Cambridge.
- Don't let them delay life-saving work any longer.

Meet 11:45am, Parks Road, Oxford

RESTAURANT REVIEW
The Old Parsonage Hotel

Whatever your preferred ambience, there's no denying that the Old Parsonage is simply a lovely place to be. Old-fashioned in feel, but lacking no modern comforts in terms of facilities and their approach to the dining experience as a whole, this is a relaxed, genteel establishment that manages to turn itself, through attention to detail, into something rather special.

There's something quintessentially English about the experience: first-class, friendly but unobtrusive service; the pleasure of sitting outdoors when it's really only just warm enough to risk it, and bits of tree are falling into your wine; well-meaning but gently over-privileged persons speaking at a slightly excessive volume; the live jazz (of a very high standard - Friday evenings throughout summer). If you're indoors, the fabulously picture-laden walls will probably absorb a good amount of your attention during your evening.

The menu is a selection of the usual suspects of modern British-Italian cuisine (quail eggs, calamari, asparagus, corn-fed chicken, risotto, steak), and the prices aren't as high as they might be given the gentility of the surroundings. As a guide, appetisers weigh in at £3.50-£5, starters £6.50-£8.50 and mains at £12.50-£20.50. You can mix and match appetisers, starters, mains and accompaniments, some starters can be ordered as mains and there's a burger or fishcake option for the kids. The wine list is extensive, and the waiting staff are happy (and able) to make recommendations. The food is excellently cooked, exquisitely presented and the portions spot on - and when the weather's really good, there's a regular barbecue. If you're feeling super-indulgent at the end of your meal (or too full to countenance pudding), they also do a range of delicious dessert wines and cocktails (the Brandy Alexander comes highly recommended).

The non-arrival of one appetiser didn't bother us once we'd realised how much we were attempting to eat in total, the weather held, and whilst the jazz was just a tiny bit too loud, it was all part of the fun (our excited neighbour even leapt up and made a request). If the experience was marred by anything, it was only by the unfortunate misapprehension of a neighbouring party that their perpetual smoking wasn't going to bother anyone because we were all outdoors. Next time we'll remember not to sit in the down-draft!
