- Food at Night
- Oxford is not known for being a 24-hour city, but should you find yourself seeking sustenance at a late hour, you may find the following useful. Al Shami on Walton Crescent (B3) opens until midnight, and the Hi-Lo Jamaican Eating House on the Cowley Road until considerably later. You will be able to get a meal at an Indian restaurant on the Cowley Road up to at least 11pm, and Oishi Master (Chinese/Japanese, M3), Rice Box (Chinese, East Oxford map, M2) & AK City (Chinese, East Oxford map, L2) are open until midnight daily. GOGO's Little Clarendon Street, C2/S Alkbares, 66 Cowley Rd, 70 serve pizza, bagels, ice cream & more until midnight.
- Beyond that, your options are limited to Oxford's venerable kebab-vending vehicles (see ). They generally operate until 2am during term. We do not suggest any particular course of action, merely provide the information. The Vaults & Garden (see food listings on daytime map) has just opened an organic, locally-sourced, vegan-friendly kebab van by the Ashmolean on St Giles (D4). At time of going to press they have a licence till midnight, but they're planning to be open till 3am by October 2008. In addition, Bodrum Kebab (E7, until 4am-ish daily, and KFC (J7) until 2am Fri/Sat).
